Three-year Intermediate Targets for Child Poverty Reduction

Portfolio                      Child Poverty Reduction

On 21 March 2018, the Cabinet Social Wellbeing Committee:

- 1        noted that the Child Poverty Reduction Bill introduces a framework that requires governments to set out how they will address child poverty, including the setting of ten-year and three-year child poverty reduction targets;
- 2        noted that in the speech that the Minister for Child Poverty Reduction (the Minister) gave at the first reading of the Child Poverty Reduction Bill, she invited the Select Committee to consider the appropriate periods to be covered by the intermediate targets;
- 3        noted that the 2015/16 and 2016/17 Household Economic Surveys appear to have achieved an unusually low number of sole-parent families, which will disproportionately reduce the reported poverty rates for children;
- 4        noted that officials from Statistics NZ and the Ministry of Social Development have advised that both the 2015/16 and 2016/17 Household Economic Surveys are not suitable for the purposes of providing baseline rates for robustly assessing progress to targets, because of the relatively small sample size in those years, and the sampling issue referred to in paragraph 3 above;
- 5        noted that the Minister's preferred approach is for both three-year and ten-year targets to have a start year of 2018/19, with estimated 2017/18 rates used as the baseline figures for the targets;
- 6        agreed that indicative three-year targets be announced as percentage point reductions in the first instance, and that precise target levels are confirmed once actual 2017/18 rates are available;
- 7        noted that the Minister has announced the intended ten-year targets under the Bill, which are as follows:
  - 7.1      reduce the proportion of children in low-income households (using the before-housing-costs measure) from roughly 15 percent of all children to 5 percent;
  - 7.2      reduce the proportion of children in low income households (using the after housing costs measure) from roughly 20 percent to 10 percent;
  - 7.3      reduce the proportion of children in material hardship from between 13 and 15 percent now to 7 percent;

- 8 agreed to the following indicative three-year targets for the three primary measures for which data is available:
- 8.1 reduce rates on the before-housing-costs 50 percent moving line measure by six percentage points;
- 8.2 reduce rates on the after-housing costs 50 percent fixed line measure by four percentage points;
- 8.3 reduce rates on the standard material hardship measure by three percentage points;
- 9 noted that the rates and numbers used in paragraph 7 and 8 above rely on ‘best estimates’ of current rates, and if the actual rates for 2017/18 differ significantly from current estimates, there could be an impact on the target rates that are ultimately set;
- 10 invited the Minister to report back to the Cabinet Social Wellbeing Committee by April 2019 on the updated rates for 2017/18, and any proposed changes to the government’s three- and ten-year targets.
